Final Countdown Slated To Begin Early This Morning

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) -Florida skies cleared Thursday to make it a better than 50-50 chance that astronaut Alan B. Shepard Jr., will be the first American shot into space Friday morning.

The final countdown is slated to begin at 12:30 a.m., EST, if a midnight weather conference decides that seas and skies are right for the shot.

The first phase of the countdown began at 7:30 a.m. Thursday. It was proceeding perfectly. But postponement can come at any time, should the weather picture change.

Minor equipment troubles found in the space capsule after last Tuesday's bad-weather postponement have been cleared away. 115-Mile High Ride

'We have no concrete assurance at this time that the weather will be perfect," a space agency spokesman said. But another added: "The weather, here, now, is most suitable for launching." It was expected to hold up

Fulbright Believes Kennedy May Send Troops If Necessary

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Chairman J. William Fulbright of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee said Thursday night he believed President Kennedy would send U.S. troops to save South Viet Nam from Communist conquest if all other steps failed. The Arkansas Democrat made the statement after a White House conference with Kennedy. He said the President made no commitments concerning direct U.S. military intervention.

Fulbright emerged from the meeting shortly after Secretary of State Dean Rusk said the United States had undertaken an urgent campaign to bolster South Viet Nam against growing Communist sabotage and terrorism.

Fulbright said he would be willing to dispatch U.S. troops to South Viet Nam on a temporary basis provided the free Vietnamese favored such action and were willing to fight. But he withheld judgment on long-term involvement depending on what India and Japan did. Opposed Troops For Laos Traditionally the system was conceived to segregate Aryan conquerors from the aboriginal Dravidians. It developed into a division of labor: Brahmans were the priests and cholars; Kshatriyas the warriors: Vaisvas the merchants: Sudras the workers. Beyond caste, and condemned to the most menial tasks, were the untouchables.

PRESENT MEMORIAL BOOKCASE — Culminating the observance of the National Home Demonstration Week, the Allegany County Council of Homemakers Clubs devoted a program to the area of reading at the executive board luncheon yesterday. It was held at the Ali Ghan Country Club, with Kenneth Duchac, Baltimore, as guest speaker. A skit depicting a family scene and showing "what books do for the family" was presented. Taking part were Mrs. Bernard Baker, Mrs. Henry Pyles, Mrs. Ted Wojeck, Mrs. Paul Rice, Mrs. Harry Bender and members of the book committee, Mrs. Joseph Steger, Mrs. Irene MacDonald, Mrs. Douglas Smith, Mrs. Edgar Repphan and Mrs. John S. Cook. Mrs. Frank Dayton, county reading chairman read a poem dedicating the memorial book shelf to the late Miss Maude A. Bean, Allegany County home demonstration agent for over 25 years. The fascinating story of HANDWOVEN INDIA MADRAS

The results from the primitive looms of the native weavers are individualistic in color and pattern. The homespun qualities of authentic India Madras result in no two pieces being exactly the same and the imperfections found in this exotic fabric give it the character and texture interest which is so desirable.

The native vegetable dyed yarns which are used, bleed and blend together giving the fabric that much-desired quality of distinctively muted and subdued colorings. This characteristic is to be found only in imported authentic Hand-woven India Madras.

England's Queen Visits The Pope

Queen Elizabeth II's "courtesy call" on Pope John XXIII at the Vatican today has revived speculation that a new era of rapport between the Church of England and the Roman Catholic Church may be in prospect. The relationship between the two churches was warmed considerably last December 2 when Dr. Geoffrey F. Fisher, ninety-ninth Archbishop of Canterbury and Primate of the Church of England, became the first head of the Anglican Church to call upon a Roman Catholic Pope.

But a great gulf of more than 400 years of history separates the two churches and no one really believes a reunion is possible. The split dates from 1534, when Henry VIII decided to assert his supremacy over the English church. He had Parliament pass the Acts of Supremacy, declaring him "Supreme Head on Earth of the Church of England." Because the rupture was more on political and personal than on religious grounds, the schism between the two churches has never been as corrosive as between the Roman Catholic Church and many other Protestant sects.

Nevertheless, Dr. Fisher's historic visit with the Pope did arouse some criticism among Church of England communicants, and he was obliged to assure the doubting that there had been no so-called "surrender" to the Pope. Rather, Dr. Fisher stated, the object of the visit was to prepare for "infrequent, informal and formal exchanges of interest and understanding between the two churches." Pope John later remarked that the Archbishop had shown courage by asking to be received in the Vatican.

Queen Elizabeth is in a less exposed position than the Archbishop in making her call as one temporal sovereign on another. Although she is the head of the English church and carries the title "Defender of the Faith," English monarchs in the past have made similar courtesy calls on the Pope within a reasonable time after his accession.

Reuniting all the communities of Christendom appears to be a superhuman task. But many statesmen and churchmen alike can see advantage flowing from any contacts that willin the words of one commentator-"ally those who believe in God more closely in their struggle against those who proclaim their disbelief in

How Much Must We Lose?

There is no use going into a fight unless the intention is to win. To lose is to strengthen the enemy. The only reason why Soviet Russia has defeated the United States in Korea, Cuba, Laos, as we shall lose in other parts of the world, is that the Russians are intent and aggressive whereas the United States prefers to retreat, to abnegate, to avoid direct action, to talk, talk, talk until the vapor of words fills the air.

All this talk of doing nothing about Cuba is childish because if the United States does not do something about Cuba, the Russians, using Cuba as a fortress, will do something about the United States. The logic which produced our defeat in Korea, is producing our defeat in Cuba. The same men who brought about our defeat in Korea are bringing on our defeat in Cuba.

The argument runs that if we protect the United States in Cuba, Soviet Russia will seize Berlin. In fact, Khrushchev said so. The answer to that can only be, "seize and be damned." Those who are afraid are already dead. When a nation shudders at the thought of war, it is already in the process of being conquered.

This is the basis of Soviet strategy against the United States. It is to defeat us step by step without war and to isolate us. In Laos, the British confused us by the proposition that they would act as brokers to effectuate a truce. Meanwhile, the Red Chinese-directed Laotian rebels steadily moved forward. The game is nearly over but the truce is still in the making. Perhaps we shall get around to a truce when the Red Chinese will move into Cambodia and Thailand. Shall we retreat from

If we have neither the courage nor the technique to defend our word, why don't we quit altogether? The Russians will isolate us in a year or two unless we choose a place to fight them and stop this process. It is our isolation that is their target. The Russians and Red Chinese are building Empires and are not wasting time with petty conversations either at the United Nations or any other conference. While they make speeches, they also march forward.

Their argument is: "You want to talk, so talk. We have plenty of delegates to send to meetings. Let them talk. It counts for nothing but you Westerners are so bogged down in a swamp of words that you talk because it gives you pleasure, like a debating society in college. You talk to each other and you talk to us. But we are very

'With us, it is different. We are attending to business. Our business. Your business. It does not matter. We have men for talking and men for acting. If we have a man who jumps on a horse and rides furiously until he comes to a ditch; then he turns around and goes back slowly - if we have such a man, like some of my colleagues were, we send them far away. We do not need those who dare not take the next inevitable step. We get rid of them.

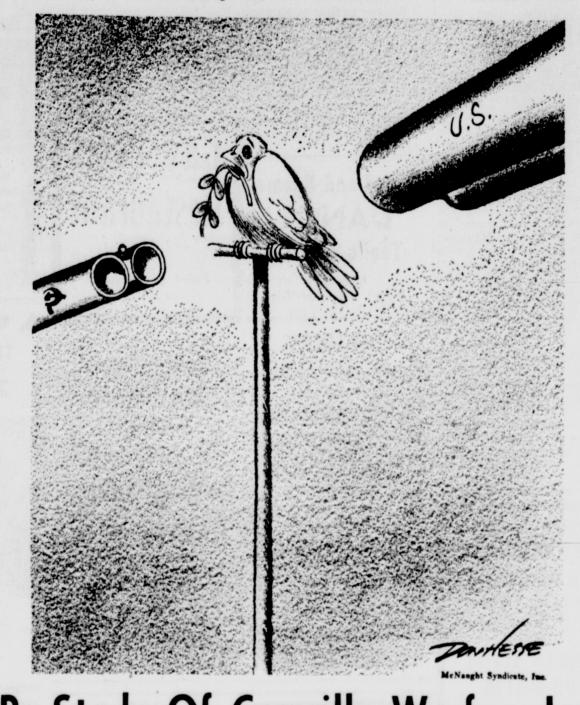

"The West objects that Khrushchev said, 'We will bury you.' So, he talked too much! So what! You are burying yourself by being afraid. And the more afraid you are, the more we will say, Boo!"

And it is all a correct position. Our I esident has chosen as his advisers those who advised President Roosevelt and President Truman. The results of their period of political activity have thus far been disastrous. During his campaign, President Kennedy said that we had reached a low prestige. He would raise our prestige, but many of these whom he chose to help him raise our prestige were among those who helped lower our prestigo.

President John F. Kennedy is nobody's fool. Sooner or later, he will weary of the supercilious advice which he receives from those who are always proved to be wrong by the course of events. He will ask himself why the course of events proves them to be wrong. He will then set up his own policy without the counsellors of defeat. When he does, the United States will again go forward. It will not go forward by retreating.

Pearson Accuses CIA Of 'Fumbling, Bumbling' Attempt To Invade Cuba

WASHINGTON - The story has now been pieced together of the tragedy of the Bay of Pigs where 1,500 Cuban freedom fighters were routed by Dictator Castro's militia after a heroic two-day stand,

It is a story of fumbling and bumbling by the Central Intelligence Agency which is now trying desperately to hide its mistakes. Agents have been rushed to Florida to hush up the Cubans who know the embarrassing truth.

However, this column has dug out the facts and will publish its findings on the grounds that the public is entitled to know the facts in order to prevent similar mistakes in the future. Here is the first installment

President Eisenhower ordered the CIA a year ago to begin training Cuban refugees to invade their homeland. The first detachment, 32 eager recruits, departed for Guatemala in May, 1960.

They had been told that a training camp would be ready for them. They found only tangled, tropical, snake-infested underbrush. For the first week, they lived on corn flakes and rain water. Since the rainy season had just started, there was no shortage of running water.

They hacked their own camp out of the jungle on property donated by a wealthy Guatemalan landlord named Roberto Alejos. More camps sprang up as other trainees filtered in. One drawback: many of the camps, situ-

A revolutionary air force was also recruited and rushed to Guatemala where they had been promised a base would be waiting for them. Instead, they found equipment to build a base and spent the month of August manning tractors instead of planes.

By January, an ambitious young sub-chief named Manuel Artime had become the CIA's fair-haired boy. He ingratiated himself with Frank Bender, the CIA area chief, through Bender's secretary, Macho Barker. Artime promised to make Barker the Presidente de Delegacion Deportes, sort of a glorified sports czar, in liberated

Artime Takes Over

Finally, on January 30, the persuasive Artime staged a coup in the camps. He rallied the men with speeches full of fire and Of the 1,500 to 1,800 freedom fighters, only 200 balked at making him their leader.

He quickly arrested and isolated these, then did missionary work among them for the remaining weeks. Approximately 80 escaped into the jungle and sneaked across Mexico back to Miami. One by one, the rest rejoined the ranks except for a stubborn core of 17 who remained in isolation until the invasion was over.

D-Day was moved up from May to April 17 because Russian Migs were reported arriving in Cuba and the May rains might hamper the operation. In the haste, however, the CIA neglected to coordinate the invasion with a planned uprising. Thousands of men, waiting inside Cuba to spring into action, never got the signal.

For some unaccountable reason, the CIA also stopped its propaganda broadcasts to the Cuban people from Swan Island in the Caribbean 15 days before the invasion. It would seem this should have been the time for stirring up the Cuban people. Swan radio finally went back on the air as the invasion began, and announced where it was taking place after the first small landing party had scarcely hit the beach.

Three ships, packed with radiojamming equipment, were also waiting in Miami for the big moment. Under secret plan U-40. they were supposed to slip sabotage teams ashore in Cuba to blow up Castro's communication centers in advance of the invasion. Those that couldn't be sabotaged on D-Day, they were still tied up at the Miami docks

For the invasion fleet, the CIA through Charles Mills, a Miami yacht broker, had purchased a couple of motley LCI's (Landing Craft Infantry). These were manned by defectors from the Cuban Navy but commanded by hired American Merchant officers.

Drunken reroes Some of these hired heroes turned out to be drunks. Others were actually anti-Cuban and refused to bunk with the men they were supposed to lead on a crusade to free their homeland. As a result, half the Cuban crew deserted one ship at Vieques, the revolutionary naval base off the tip of Puerto

The CIA also leased three ships from the Garcia Lines: the Rio Escondido, Huston, and Atlantic. These carried mixed crews which weren't told until they arrived at the staging area about their dangerous destination.

Then they were given the option of staying with their ships for bonus wages or remaining in custody in Nicaragua until the invasion was over. All except a couple remained on board. For all the CIA's stress on security, no one had bothered to check on the crew members. One radio operator, a Cuban, confessed that he was loval to Castro. It was decided that the safest course would be to take him along where he could be watched.

But no one was assigned to watch him. Later, at sea, he was discovered in the radio room, sending frantic messages to Havana about the approaching invasion. Another crew member was caught trying to send flashlight messages to shore as the invasion fleet approached the Cuban coast.

The evening before D-Day, the fleet passed the lighthouse at Cayo Guano Del Este, south of Cuba. Two freedom fighters aboard the Rio Escondido - Garcia Batista and Avila Cancio happened to be tuned to a shortwave radio receiver.

Suddenly, from the lighthouse, messages began to crackle: "Urgent! Calling Havana! Urgent! Switch to working frequencies!"

Obviously, the fleet had been spotted, and the lighthouse wanted to send details on the secret working frequencies. Batista and Cancio rushed to the civilian skipper, a Spaniard, who shrugged his shoulders.

"Don't worry," he said confidently. "The Americans know what they're doing.'

Re-Study Of Guerrilla Warfare Long Overdue

Joseph Alsop is on a brief vacation. During his absence his brother Stewart will write the

What has been happening in Laos, and what threatens soon to happen in Vietnam, repeats a grim pattern. The pattern can be reduced into a simple formula. With Communist support, a guerrilla movement grows until it becomes stronger than the regular military forces of the country. The Communists then take control, confronting this country with choice between intervening militarily in a situation where all the odds favor the Communists. or abandoning another nation to

Since the last war, this sequence of events has occurred in north Indo-China, in Cuba, and in China itself, with Laos and Vietnam next on the Communists' list. Even where a Communist-supported guerrilla movement has failed, as in Greece, Burma, Malaya, and the Philippines, a very high price has been exacted. In Malaya, to cite one example, a guerrilla force which never numbered more than a few thousand tied down 80,000 British troops for ten years.

This is enough to suggest why President Kennedy has asked Gen. Maxwell Taylor to reexamine the theory and practice of guerrilla warfare. The reexamination is long overdue. No sensible man doubts that sending American forces into Cuba or Laos or some other "peripheral country" is, to put it mildly, intensely undesirable. But does this mean that all the "peripheral countries" are to be conquered by indirection, until there is nothing left but an enfeebled Western Europe and a beleaguered North

The eventual answer to that question would appear to be 'yes''-so long as we accept what this reporter's brother, writing from Vietnam, recently called "the double standard." Under the double standard the Communists are at liberty to arm, supply, and ever, there is a growing feeling in support by all means short of actual invasion any Communist guerrilla movement on non-Communist territory. But any attempt by our side to support a resistance movement in Communist territory is an act of war, and must be ruled out.

Surely it is clear that we cannot possibly win the game under such rules, and indeed that we must lose the game in the end. Must we play under such rules?

The answer depends in part on the peculiar nature of guerrilia warfare. This reporter had a brief experience in the French Maquis (where he carefully followed Mao Tse-tung's rule that "guerrillas should be as cautious as virgins") and has been fascinated with the subject of guerrilla warfare ever since. A good deal of thought and study suggests that three requirements must be met if a guerrilla movement is to be effective.

First, it must have popular support. In his brilliant treatise on guerrilla warfare (which President Kennedy recently read) Mao Tse-tung wrote: "Guerrillas are like fish, and the people are the water in which the fish swim. If the temperature of the water is right, the fish multiply and flour-

The temperature of the water is in part controlled by the second and third requirements. The second requirement is that guerrillas must have support from without, if necessary overt and

MORE ON CUBA-Perhaps the most serious shock has been to the President, himself. His confidence in the functionings of some of his key agencies has been shaken. This must be repaired quickly before either he, or his aides, can be expected to make major decisions based on their reports and assessments.

Another fact that has been driven home to the men in the White House is that Kennedy, by his new White House staff setup, has inevitably involved the personal prestige of the Presidency to a far greater degree than any recent President before him.

The Kennedy "image" of being on top of every situation, projected by his televised press conferences, his speeches and his messages to Congress, made it unavoidable for him to accept full responsibility for the decisions taken in the Cuban rebellion. With all the admissions, howWashington that not all of the story has been told, and that some of the parts that have been told are distorted or exaggerated. because they are incredible.

For many months, for instance, news stories, magazines articles and speeches have told of Castro's popularity with his "campasinos." the shoeless ones of his country. Despite widely published reports, it is incomprehensible that the Central Intelligence Agency did not know of this situation or failed to give it proper weight in its calculations.

Where the CIA did go awry was in its underestimation of the ruthlessness with which the Castro regime would impose controls on the populace during the invasion. Castro moved to prevent an uprising with more alacrity than he did to frustrate the invasion, imprisoning more than 50,000 of his nationals in a matter of two or trine of historical inevitability" is precisely the opposite of the course we chose in Cuba. It is a firm and believable pledge that the whole power of the United States will be used if necessary to prevent the destruction of an movement.

As this suggests, we ought to recognize that this guerrilla business is not a gimmick, or a cheap substitute for national power. If President Kennedy decides to change the rules of the game, a most violent reaction can be expected, for on this subject the nerves of the Communist leaders have always been raw, "We must dread these guerrilla tendencies." Lenin shouted in 1919 when there were guerrilla uprisings in the Ukraine, "We must dread them like fire or they will leap to our destruction." But while recognizing the dangers of changing the rules of the game, we ought also to recognize that, if the rules are not changed, we shall lose the

Kidneys Are The Body's Filtering Mechanism

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

The kidneys contain 2 million filtering units (nephrons). All the blood in the body passes through these structures every 5 minutes. This is an outstanding feat, considering that 10 to 12 pints of liquid trickle through this vast meshwork of capillaries, tubules, and cells in this time.

The nephron is microscopic in size and consists essentially of an upper, middle, and lower part. The center portion is comparable to a funnel filled with a curled up vessel bringing in the blood to be

Second Edition Planned In 1962

BEDFORD, Pa. - "A complete success," report officers of the Pennsylvania Angus Association on the first "Grasstime" Commercial Angus Sale at Bedford. Saturday. A second edition already is planned for the spring of Twelve consignors presented 69 head of Angus which sold for a total of $13,052.50. Auctioneer Clarence Showalter moved the cattle right along with James V. Covner, Eastern Fieldman of the American Angus Association assisting in the box with points of information on the cattle. The cattle were in unfitted commercial condition ready for grass.

The eight bulls, including several yearlings averaged $286.25. The high bull, Logan Spring Elbar 7, consigned by Gilbert S. Watts, Bellwood, went to E. P. Young and Sons, Westover for Sixty-one females averaged $196.20 with 14 light weight fall calves excluded or $175.84 for all females. The high pen of cows with calves at side, also consigned by Watts, went to J. J. Camp, Roaring Spring at $280 a pair for this group of four pairs.

Top group among the 42 yearling heifers offered was a registered pen of four consigned by Stanley Koontz Sr. of Bedford. These went at $237.50 to L. W. Dunkleberger of Harrisburg who took home 17 head, being largest buyer among the 19 who purchased Angus. The top selling pen of grade (unregistered) young heifers was a lot of four

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE - Here's how to work it: AXYDLBAAXR to LONGFELLOW

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different

Annual Trash Drive Ends

The Street Department Cleanup Week campaign resulted in the collection of 221 truckloads of trash and debris.

Final collection was made at 11 a. m. yesterday on the south side of Greene Street toward the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company. The department did not get to the area in its West Side pickup Wednesday and assigned nine trucks to the task yesterday. Street Commissioner John J

Long expressed his thanks for the public cooperation and appreciation to the men for a job well done in the campaign.

Merchants Back Cleanup Week

The Retail Merchants Association this week adopted a resolution commending the Mayor and Council for its sponsorship of "Cleanup Week" in Cumberland. All members of the association were asked to offer full cooperation in the drive, according to

John J. Coyle, chairman. Member stores were asked to give special attention to store fronts during the observance.

49 Building Permits Issued During April

Construction Set At $267,650 Level

April was the year's best month for number of building permits issued by James G. Stevenson, clerk to the Allegany County Board of Commissioners, but the total estimated cost of construction at $267,650 was more than $30,000 below the March total. Last month there were 49 county building permits issued for construction outside the corporate limits of the seven incorporated communities of Allegany County. The number of permits was 10 more than for March but the total estimate cost lagged $30,325 below the March level Applications for county building permits generally are conservative in their cost estimates. Last month, the highest total cited by any of them was $20,000 for a house in North Branch, District

101 Is Year's Total

With the year one-third over, there have been 101 building permits issued and the total estimated cost is $642,150. Both totals are ahead of the four-month totals of 1960 when 92 permits had been issued for construction totaling $613,325.

Last month was below April 1960 on both points. A year ago there were two more April permits, 51, and the total estimated cost was $304,200, some $36,550 higher than last month. The 49 April permits approved construction work in 17 different election districts of the county. Election District 29, LaVale, the usual leader, had to share honors with District 6, West Side suburban, with nine permits each. Most of the District 6 building is in Sunset View and Potomac Park. Six other election districts had two or more April permits. Included were District 7, Cresaptown-Rawlings, six; District 5, North End suburban, five; District 20, Corriganville-Ellerslie, four; District 3, Flintstone, three; District 13, Mt. Savage, and District 16, North Branch, two each.

Nine other districts had just 32. Frostburg suburban, and 33,
